The GIMP _The GIMP_ (shown in Figure 9-6) is a popular open-source image manipulation program with many features. It has basic image-editing tools such as cropping, resizing, and rotating. However, its most powerful feature is an extremely powerful editing toolset for layer-based photo editing. It includes a collection of preset tools that enable you to edit a photo with transparency, increase or reduce its brightness, or give it a brownish filter. Q: PHP mail() doesn't work using SMTP I am trying to use a PHP script to send emails to a list of addresses using a SMTP server. However, I am getting errors saying that the credentials are wrong. When I run PHP_SELF through my browser, it works as expected, and so I am confident that the server is connecting to the correct ports and using the correct passwords. Here is the code I am using to connect the SMTP server: $host = 'www.xxxx.xyz'; $username = 'email@mydomain.com'; $password = 'password'; $smtp = Mail::factory('smtp', array('host' => $host, 'auth' => true, 'username' => $username, 'password' => $password, 'port' => 587, 'tls' => true, 'from' => array('from@email.com' => 'From'),)); Mail::send('send_email', array('address'=> 'track@domain.com'), function($message) { $message->to('track@domain.com')->subject('Please respond to the following message')->line('Test out our tracker for WordPress - watch for a response.')->view('emails.html'); }); I have been poring over this code for hours and cannot figure out what is wrong. The only thing I can see is that I do not have the path to the script correct. This is from the error I am getting: Warning: mail(): "smtp" is not recognized as a public method of "Auth" in C:\development\xxxx\trackers\email\track-email.php on line 15
